The Post-Vietnam Era Veterans Educational Assistance Program is a 5-year pilot program designed to promote and assist the all-volunteer armed forces in attracting qualified persons by offering educational assistance to young men and women who might not otherwise be able to afford an education. To be eligible, a service member must elect to participate and agree to contribute between 50 and 75 per month to an education fund. This contribution is matched by 2 for every 1 by the Veterans Administration (VA). Upon completion of his service, the participant becomes eligible for monthly educational assistance payments. Although the program has been in effect for more than a year, VA and the Department of Defense had not issued comprehensive joint guidelines for implementation and administration of the program. Interim guidelines were issued on a piecemeal basis by the individual services. Information presented to eligible recruits varied among the services and, in some instances, was inconsistent with the law. Two services provided recruits with a scheduled opportunity to make an allotment for the program before their detailed briefing on the program. Some service...
